CABERNET SAUVIGNON
(ALEXANDER VALLEY)

The wine smelled of the savory notes of a barrel room, which reminded us of a Napa Cab. “That’s the smell I call ‘truth,’” notes Goldschmidt. “Savory equals Cabernet Sauvignon,” continues the very quotable winemaker. The buxom wine may have big tannins, but it glides sleekly along the palate. “I think Cabernet should be spicy” declares Goldschmidt. “But when you are over 14.5%, you are removing not only the terroir but also the flavor of the grape. If you don’t like that, you should be drinking Merlot.”
